Модуль 2. Бытовая сфера общения.

Тема 1 «Знакомство». «О себе».

1. Опрос.

Вопросы для устного опроса по теме:

1. What is your name?
2. Where are you from?
3. Where do you live in Kostroma?
4. What is your appearance? How do you look like?
5. At what school did you learn?
6. How successful in studies were you?
7. At what faculty do you study at the academy?
8. Why did you take the decision to take this faculty?
9. Did anybody influence your decision?
10. What kind of person are you? What could you say about your character?
11. What are your hobbies and interests?
12. What are your plans for the future?

2. Монолог “About Myself”

(ПРИМЕРНОЕ СОДЕРЖАНИЕ):

My name is Natalia. My surname is Govorova. I am 15. I was born in 1982 in Chelyabinsk. I live in a small town of Usinsk in the Komi Republic. My address is Flat 116, 19, Pionerskaya Street. My phone number is 41-5-81. I am a student. I study at university. I do well in all subjects. They say, that I am a hardworking person. To tell the truth, all subjects come easy for me but sometimes I have to sit much, for example, to do assignments in Physics or Chemistry. My favourite subject is English. I spend much time on it reading books, doing tests etc. I'm sure, English is essential for my future career. I like reading. I think comics and detective stories are much easier to read but I prefer to read novels - historical or up-to-date. I like music. My musical tastes are different, but it depends on my mood. But I think every apple is good in its season. I play the piano and the guitar, not seriously, but for my soul. Sometimes I like to listen to the Russian classical music. My favourite composers are Chaikovsky and Mozart. I don't like rock music, but I also like Russian folk songs. I have not much time to watch TV but sometimes I spend an hour or two watching an interesting film or a news program. In the evening I often read newspapers (our local ones) or magazines. I like fresh air and exercise. I'm sorry I have not much time for doing sports. But some aerobics in the morning, a swimming-pool twice a week, a ski-walk on a frosty day are of great help. Sport is fun. I have a wide circle of interests. I'm very sociable. I have many friends; most of them are my class-mates. We spend much time together, going out to the cinema or to the disco party, speaking about lessons and music, discussing our problems. But most of all I like my family. We all are great friends and deeply attached to each other. You see, it's me - a person with his good and not good characteristics, liking this and hating that. But it's interesting for me to live, to open new things.

The public educational system in Russia includes pre-schools, general schools, specialized secondary and higher education. So-called pre-schools are kindergartens in fact. Children there learn reading, writing and maths. But pre-school education isn't compulsory - children can get it at home. Compulsory education is for children from 6(7) to 17 years of age. The main branch in the system of education is the general schools which prepare the younger generation for life and work. There are various types of schools: general secondary schools, schools specializing in a certain subject, high schools, gymnasiums and so on. The term of study in a general secondary school is 11 years and consists of primary, middle and upper stages. At the middle stage of a secondary school children learn the basic laws of nature and society at the lessons of history, algebra, literature, physics and many others. After 9th form pupils have to sit for examinations. Also they have a choice between entering the 10th grade of a general secondary school or going to professional school. Pupils who finish the general secondary school, receive a secondary education certificate, giving them the right to enter any higher educational establishment. One has to study in the institute for 5 years. Higher educational institutions train students in one or several specializations.

Education in Britain developed by steps. The first step was the introducing of two kinds of school: grammar schools and secondary modern schools. Grammar schools offered a predominantly academic education and in secondary modern schools education was more practical. The second step was the introducing of a new type of school, the comprehensive, a combination of grammar and secondary modern, so that all children could be continually assessed and given appropriate teaching. These schools were co-educational and offered both academic and practical subjects. However, they lost the excellence of the old grammar schools. Then after 1979 the greatest reforms in schooling were introduced. They included the introduction of a National Curriculum making certain subjects, most notably science and one modern language, compulsory up to the age of 16. The National Curriculum aims to ensure that all children study essential subjects and have a better all-round education. Pupils' progress in subjects in National Curriculum is measured by written and practical tests. More ambitious pupils continue with very specialized studies in the sixth form. They remain at school for two years more. Pupils sit for exams leaving secondary school and sixth form. They sit for the General Certificate Secondary Education at the end of the 5th-years' course. A-level or AS-levels are taken after two years of study in the sixth form. They are the main standard for entrance to university or other higher education. Some parents prefer to pay for their children to be educated at independent schools. This private sector includes the so-called public schools, some of whose names are known all over the world, for example Eton. It provides exceptionally fine teaching facilities, for example in science, languages, computing and design. Its students are largely from aristocratic and upper-class families. The Government's vision for the education system of the 21st century is that it will neither be divisive nor based on some lowest denominator. Diversity, choice and excellence will be its hallmarks in this century.

After taking GCSE (General Certificate of Education) exam young people can take three ways:

1. They can continue their academic education in the sixth form & get GCE-A Level (General Certificate of Education Advanced level) and then enter the university they have chosen (The most popular way in Britain)
2. They can continue studying in a college, where they choose any practical course and get a diploma NVA (National Vocation Qualification) or S VA in Scotland. After that they can start working.
3. Mixed type education. Young people can get General National Vocation Qualification (GNVQ) or GSVA in Scotland and then they can start practical work or enter a university as well. After that the education is considered to be higher. To get higher education young people go to the institute or college & after 3-4 years of studying they'll get Bachelor-degree and if they study 1-2 years more – Master degree.

ICT in Our Life

ICT plays a key role in business today. In fact, its use is now so widespread that it is difficult to succeed without it. Rapid developments in the ICT sector in the last two decades have produced a huge range of new products and services, including such products as personal computers (PCs), embedded computers, robots, drones, and some services – the Internet and the World Wide Web. Businesses of all sizes and types use computer-based systems like these because they offer a better way to work – one which can save money and time. Firstly, ICT is a faster and more efficient way for people to communicate. Businesses no longer have to rely on slow postal services. They can send and receive information and documents by email. Video-conferencing means people do not need Non-digital vs Digital Economy Different features Common features 56 to travel long distances to attend meetings. ICT provides a way for people within an organization to contact each other quickly and share work. ICT is also used to input, process, store and manage information. One common use of application software (word processing, desktop publishing) is to produce documents, and databases to store customer details and produce lists of their preferences. It takes less time, costs less and saves storage space than in the past. Another area where ICT is important is the retail industry. All items on sale in a shop have a small black and white label called a bar code. Shops combine bar-coding with electronic point-of-sale (EPOS). The customer takes an item to the cashier, who uses a scanning device to read the bar code and find out the price of the item. This system also helps the shop manager to decide which products to reorder from suppliers. Some EPOS systems are even programmed to do the ordering. Manufactures use ICT to design and build products. At the design stage, they use computer-aided design (CAD) software to produce new ideas and design. In the production stage many companies use robots. These machines are controlled by computer-assisted manufacturing (CAM) programs. Robots can carry out routine, complex and dangerous procedures. They can work 24 hours a day without being tired and bored. As a result, companies can improve their production without losing qualities.

The Impact of the Digital Economy on Accounting, Reporting and Audit

The digital economy is a set of challenges: distributed registry technology (blockchain system), cryptocurrencies, robotization, cloud technologies. Expansion of market opportunities and the absence of common rules for the use of these instruments entail certain risks for operating enterprises. The transition to a digital economy from the economy of production processes and resources requires changes in the accounting system, leads to the evolution of accounting in general, and as a consequence requires changes in the processes of audit and internal control, as will be described in the article. II. THE MAIN TECHNOLOGICAL TRENDS OF THE XXI CENTURY AND THEIR IMPACT ON ACCOUNTING, REPORTING AND AUDIT In the course of writing this article it was carried out an analysis of the experience of foreign and Russian researchers: K. Schwab, E. Brynjolfsson, A. McAfee, M. Spence, M. Matthews, N. Kamordzhanova, A. Bakaev, I. Semina, S. Dyatlov, D. Gilmanov, D. Pankov and many others on the impact of digitalization on the functioning of the economy, enterprises, the work of the financial sector, the methods of accounting, changing the existing business model. Also, the article is based on research by organizations such as Ernst&Young, PwC, McKinsey & Company, PEW Research Center, Agency for Strategic Initiatives, materials of the annual conference of the Russian Association for Electronic Communications (RAEC), articles of periodicals, on changes in legislative and other normative acts, etc. Among the main trends of the digital economy include technologies such as Big Data, artificial intelligence, a distributed registry system and crypto-currencies, cloud technologies, augmented reality, neurotechnologies, etc. Pressing issue is about how in the conditions of rapid development of information technologies accounting and reporting rules and standards should change in order to remain relevant for the evaluation of digital business. A. Trends and Influence on Accounting and Reporting With the development of technologies, a huge amount of information from physical media has been translated into digital format (electronic registers) stored on a server to which network access is provided. After authorization on a server users of electronic registries access the complex functionality of various applications, be it human resource management, planning, financial reporting, verification of transactions between business partners, etc. The usage of cloud technologies for the company's IT infrastructure allows users to access it from any mobile device, regardless of geolocalization and time of day, providing timely accounting, monitoring and response to what is happening. Implication of such a trend as block chain, relieves the need for inter-company verifications, because all the necessary information is kept unchanged in blocks. Accordingly a decrease in the number of intermediaries reduces the risks of possible intrusion into the internal ecosystem of the company. The modern market cannot be called completely transparent, that is not all market participants can have all the information. Some participants gain a competitive advantage due to imbalance in the information on the market, and in the digital economy, information is a priority commodity (an unlimited resource). Block Chain provides full transparency of all operations, which can transform the concept of private information, where the details of the transaction are known only to counterparties. Distributed registry technology could lead to what will be carried out public records of activities within a given ecosystem in which all market participants have equal access to information in real time.

№2 Письменный перевод аутентичного текста по специальности

Marketing starts in a market, where individuals or organized groups who want to buy goods or services meet people who want to sell them. The buyers must have money to spend and willingness to spend it, or a product or service they themselves are willing to trade. The sellers must have what the buyers want. To understand these groups is the first step in marketing. The marketers must determine the number of buyers, what they want to buy, how, when and where they want to buy it, at what price and what they expect from it. Techniques of research have been developed to supply this information. Of course marketers have to decide which needs they want to meet. A concept for a product or service may develop long before any marketing research is done, or it may be a response to identified needs.

In part, at least, marketing determines what products and services are to be offered and where they could be used.

Theory of Demand.

Consumer demand is the quantities of a particular good that an individual consumer wants and is able to buy as the price varies, if all other factors influencing demand are constant.

That is, consumer demand is the relationship between quantity demanded for the good and its price. The factors assumed constant are prices of other goods, income, and a number of economic factors, such as social, physiological, demographic characteristics of the consumer in question.

The theory of demand is based on the assumption that the consumer having budget constraint seeks to reach the maximum possible level of utility, that is, to maximize utility, but he usually prefers to obtain more rather than less. The consumer has to solve the problem of choice. If he is to maintain a given level of utility, increases in the quantity of one good must be followed by reductions in the quantity of the other good. The consumer has to choose the specific goods within the limits imposed by his budget. The concept of marginal utility is of great importance for solving the utility maximization problem. The marginal utility of a good is the additional utility obtained from consuming an additional unit of the good in question. The marginal utility from consuming a good decreases as more of that good is consumed. The income should be allocated among all possible choices so that the marginal utility per dollar of expenditure on each good is equal to the marginal utility per dollar of expenditure on every other good.

(1) _____ : Alan Bilton

From : Sue Mullins

(2) _____ : Seminar for the new staff

(3) _____

About the seminar you're organising for the new staff next month – will you need any equipment set up?

I'll do a short introduction to the subject but I only need an OHP.

Can you fill in the request form for everything we'll need and send it to Shane Bell in the Technical department?

Thanks,
